'Learning Through Experience for Becoming a Successful Entrepreneur'

Developing a career is a process, not just a destination. Unfortunately, not enough attention is paid to the developmental process required to engage in thoughtful, thorough career development. The ENTRE@VETSCHOOLS project aims to develop VET students' entrepreneurial skills that will not only contribute to new business creation, but also to the employability of young people.

According to the Entrepreneurship Competence Framework (EntreComp), being able to learn through experience has been identified as a key competence for aspiring entrepreneurs to develop if they want to be successful. We all know their names: Bill Gates, Stephen Jobs, J.K Rowling, Thomas Edison, to name a few, consist the personification of success. We have heard them time and time again for their great achievements and the difference they made in their fields. But what most people do not know is just how they failed and how they turn their failure into the success we all see and admire.

However, for someone to be able to learn through experience, aspiring entrepreneurs need to be able to:

- Reflect and learn from both success and failures (your own and other people's)
- Learn with others – including peers and mentors,
- use any initiative for value creation as a learning opportunity,
